FOR THE LOVE OF NASHVILLE ... and for the love of PBS

Becky Magura

President & CEO of Nashville PBS

Happy New Year! I truly believe that this will be a year Nashville PBS will find the “wind beneath our wings”, and you are an important part of that! We welcome 2025 with you by our side, as our loyal viewer and supporter!

We are only one year away from our country’s 250th birthday and Nashville PBS is making plans for that special event and looks forward to sharing more details in the coming year!

Check out our magazine photos! There are so many beautiful moments in our community, and with members of our greater Nashville area. That’s important to us as we launch into our strategic plan to “bridge old Nashville with new Nashville.” We will continue to build our amazing local content with our own programming, as well as curated content from our Nashville creative community. This includes a new folk opera, No Man’s Land, by Marcus Hummon, in partnership with Belmont University!

We are also adding a new digital content service this year, with the Nashville PBS ALL ARTS Channel! I can’t wait for you to experience this. Once you do, let us know how you feel about this channel. It was made possible by the generosity of our board members and viewers who strongly supported our anniversary campaign in September!

I often reflect on the vision a group of community leaders had in creating WDCN, aka Nashville PBS, sixty-three years ago and establishing a commitment that is still in effect today — serving middle Tennessee with education, civic leadership and public safety!

Our name and the way you receive our content may have changed, but our commitment to quality, essential service unduplicated by other media sources on air, online and locally on the ground have never been stronger.

We will continue to be bold in our vision and in sharing community stories of success! You can be proud of your Nashville PBS on a local, regional and national level, including multiple Emmy nominations. Truly, we are only at the beginning of transformative change!

We are grateful for the wonderful support we receive, including important foundational mission centric support on a local, state and federal level. Nashville PBS isn’t just nice, it’s necessary. Our public / private partnership is a trusted resource for everyone in our community.

I encourage you to stay in touch with us and reach out directly to share your thoughts on Nashville PBS by calling (615) 259-9325 or through our website, www.wnpt.org. Follow us on our social platforms and check out protectmypublicmedia.org for more information on the importance of federal funding for our system.

In 2023, more than 2 million U.S. grandparents were responsible for their grandchildren. These circumstances are often born of tragedy, and research shows that children who cannot remain with their parents do best when placed in the care of a loving relative. Yet grandparents are frequently unprepared for the challenges ahead and need ongoing support. Watch the latest documentary of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren on Nashville PBS.

UPCOMING JANUARY GUEST LORENZO WASHINGTON

Lorenzo Washington is the nationally/internationally known Founder / Curator of Jefferson Street Sound Museum. The museum is preserving the rich history, musical traditions and well known landmarks of Historic Jefferson Street. It has become Washington's life's calling and his efforts continue to excite music enthusiasts all over the world. He also created the Jefferson Street Sound genealogy tree, showing the night clubs and legendary artists who came through the "original Music Row." He is keeping the legacy alive through the collection of information and artifacts documenting the history of jazz, soul, and rhythm and blues in North Nashville from the 1940's-1970's.

In the early 1970's, Washington embraced his passion for music by founding Soul Shack Records and Boutique. In 1976, he partnered with Moses Dillard and Jesse Boyce from Dillard & Boyce Productions, which was originally located on Nashville's Music Row. The trio released a single titled "Come on Dance" by the Saturday Night Band. The song reached #2 on the charts.

Washington turned his passion of preserving "back in the day" music into the Jefferson Street Sound Museum. The JSS Museum is a nonprofit organization that bridges historical preservation, and an impact on today's music and entertainment with a full-service recording studio. Washington was presented with a Proclamation from Senator Brenda Gilmore making April 3rd Lorenzo Washington Day. He was nominated for the Music City Walk of Fame. AMERICAN EXPERIENCE

THURSDAY, FEB 27

YOU'RE INVITED

TO A FREE SCREENING & DISCUSSION

AMERICAN COUP: WILMINGTON 1898 tells the little-known story of a deadly race massacre and carefully orchestrated insurrection in North Carolina's largest city in 1898 — the only coup d'état in the history of the US. Stoking fears of "Negro Rule," self-described white supremacists used intimidation and violence to destroy Black political and economic power and overthrow Wilmington's democratically-elected, multi-racial government.

Dozens of Black residents were murdered, and thousands were banished. The story of what happened in Wilmington was suppressed for decades until descendants and scholars began to investigate. Today, many of those descendants — Black and white — seek the truth about this intentionally buried history.

"What happened in Wilmington had the effect of putting the final nail in the coffin of democracy in North Carolina," said Robin D.G. Kelly, Department of History, UCLA. "1898 was the culmination of a process that had begun in many states throughout the South. That is the end of Black voting rights, Black civil rights until the 1960s."

Great Migrations: A People on the Move

In 4 Parts on Tuesdays
Jan 28, Feb 3, 11 & 18 at 8pm

The series tells the story of African American movement over the 20th and 21st centuries, and how it has shaped our nation by exploring the meaning behind those movements. What political or economic pressures inspire people to move? Is it more often inspired by hope or fear? Is it a search for the promised land?

After emancipation, the migratory spirit took hold in this new space of freedom, and many African Americans uprooted themselves from all that was familiar to move to northern cities (sometimes stopping first in southern cities) to build entirely new lives – a decision that dramatically changed the fabric of American culture and society. It was an epic migration of people that began in the late 19th century when it was clear that the early promises of Reconstruction would not be fulfilled, and accelerated as the century progressed.

Underlying the migrations was the abiding belief in American opportunity, as well as a belief in their own capacity to better their lives, and the lives of their children. the Great Migration was not just a seismic historical event; it's an ongoing story.

The Disappearance of Miss Scott

Tues, Feb 25 at 8pm

Hazel Scott was a jazz virtuoso and a Hollywood star who campaigned for better treatment for Black actors and publicly defied Jim Crow laws. She was also the first African American to host a network TV show and was married to the outspoken civil rights campaigner Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Jr.

Hazel was a piano prodigy at an early age, and by her early 20s, she was a Hollywood darling, until a turning point occurred during the filming of the movie The Heat's On. When Black actors were relegated to costumes purposefully soiled for a scene, Scott walked off the set, shutting down production. After a three-day strike, studio heads relented but swore she would never work in Hollywood again.

She returned to the concert stage, refusing to play in spaces that segregated audiences. She was offered a television show that rose in popularity and quickly went national, but soon after, she was named in the 'Red Channels' pamphlet, which was known for exposing alleged communists. Her show sponsors fled, and her show was canceled. She sought refuge in France, like many Black American artists, but she would never again return to the fame of her early career.

The NAACP and Its Architects

Tues, Feb 25 at 8pm

The story of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the most powerful civil rights organization ever created, through the key figures who shaped it. One of the most important but least understood figures in civil rights history, Walter White was the NAACP's longest reigning president. White clung to the belief that, for all its flaws, America held the seeds of its own redemption. When White took over the NAACP in 1929, Black Americans were socially and politically marginalized. By the time he died in 1955, they were a crucial segment of the electorate and on the brink of the landmark legal and legislative victories that would forever reshape the country. The NAACP (and its leading advocates), including Walter White, WEB DuBois, Thurgood Marshall and Charles Hamilton Houston, created a blueprint for America to follow to live up to its ideals.

DANIEL TIGER'S NEIGHBORHOOD

DANIEL TIGER'S NEIGHBORHOOD is aimed at preschoolers ages 2 to 4 which builds on the pioneering PBS series, MISTER ROGER'S NEIGHBORHOOD. This series, tells engaging stories about the life of a preschooler using musical strategies grounded in Fred Rogers' landmark social-emotional curriculum. Through imagination, creativity and music, Daniel and his friends learn the key social skills necessary for for life.

The star of the series is 4-year-old Daniel Tiger, son of the original program's beloved puppet Daniel Striped Tiger, who invites young viewers into his world, giving them a kid's eye view of his life. Daniel talks directly to viewers, warmly drawing them in and making them feel like one of his neighbors. As they closely follow and share Daniel's everyday adventures, preschoolers and their families learn fun and practical strategies and skills necessary for growing and learning.

Each episode of Daniel Tiger's Neighborhood consists of two engaging stories that center on a common early learning theme such as dealing with disappointment. One of the key ingredients that sets the new series apart is its groundbreaking use of catchy, musical strategies that reinforce each theme and that preschoolers and parents will both sing — and use — together in their daily lives.

The series' stories were written based on extensive input from a wide range of early learning specialists, formative research with children and the benefit of more than 40 years of the work of Fred Rogers. It all adds up to a powerful tool for parents: an entertaining and thoughtful guide for today's families that integrates music, interactivity and a research-based curriculum.

STORIES THAT DEFINE US

SPOTLIGHT – JULISA MAXWELL

by Carolyn Adkerson

Julisa Maxwell is a dynamic creative who currently serves as the Program Manager for the 100 Black Men of Middle Tennessee where she's able to utilize her unique skillset. With over 15 years of career experience, she excels in educating, developing relationships, and logistical organization.

She completed her undergraduate studies at Mississippi State University where she graduated with a degree in Kinesiology. After relocating to Nashville in June of 2014, Julisa began her role as a secondary educator within Metro Nashville Public Schools and earned her Master of Education from Lipscomb University. Her wide base of knowledge allowed her to teach a variety of subjects from dance to anatomy and physiology. In addition, Julisa also served as a student events coordinator and school operations manager, organizing and facilitating school-wide events and procedures.

Having a broad range of interests allows Julisa to keep a fresh perspective. Outside of her role with The 100, Julisa runs her own craft business, is a dance team consultant, and works as a trainer at Burn Boot Camp – Nolensville. She appreciates having even a small role in the lives of so many students, clients, and their families. Julisa has shared her talents with the Nashville community for over a decade and hopes to continue doing so for years to come.

Carolyn Adkerson (CA): Julisa, thank you for joining me today. Can you start by telling me a little about yourself and your journey to Nashville?

Julisa Maxwell (JM): Thank you, Carolyn. I'm originally from Olive Branch, Mississippi, and moved to Nashville in 2014 after graduating from Mississippi State University with a degree in Kinesiology. I wasn't quite sure what I wanted to do, so I joined Teach for America and taught high school here for eight years. During that time, I connected with the 100 Kings program through a colleague, starting as a program leader while teaching full-time. Eventually, I transitioned to working with the 100 Black Men of Middle Tennessee full-time, where I now manage the 100 Kings program.

CA: For those unfamiliar, could you explain the mission and impact of the 100 Kings program?

JM: Absolutely. The 100 Kings program is part of the national 100 Black Men organization, and our chapter in Middle TN's mission is to nurture and enhance the growth, development, and opportunities for young black males. The 100 Kings serves 5th to 12th grade, and we cover financial literacy, professionalism, leadership development, health and wellness, mental well-being, and, most importantly, exposure to new experiences. Our goal is to inspire students by connecting them with opportunities and ideas they may not have encountered before.

CA: How did the partnership with Nashville PBS come about?

JM: It began when our Executive Director, Andre Lee, pushed for deeper community engagement. Nashville PBS was incredibly receptive to working together. We organized a field trip where our students explored the station and learned about its operations. The experience was transformative for the students and aligned perfectly with our curriculum's focus on exposure and learning. We're excited to return in January to continue building this partnership.

CA: Do you have any personal connections to PBS or memories from growing up?

JM: Definitely. Like many kids, I grew up watching PBS after school—it was part of my daily routine. Shows like Arthur were staples in my childhood. Even though I wasn't connected to Nashville PBS specifically, it's amazing to reflect on how PBS was a shared experience for so many, no matter where we grew up.

CA: How do you see Nashville PBS supporting the community and organizations like yours in the future?

JM: Nashville PBS's role in the community is invaluable, especially with its trusted reputation. The rebrand is exciting because it signals growth and a deeper connection with the community. By partnering with organizations like ours, Nashville PBS can help bridge gaps in access to resources and opportunities. Media literacy, for example, is a huge need for our students, and I hope we can collaborate further to address it.

CA: You mentioned the importance of community involvement. How can people support the 100 Kings program?

JM: Volunteering is the best way. We have opportunities for everyone, whether it's a small commitment like speaking at our Kings Corner for 30 minutes or leading a workshop. A misconception about the 100 Black Men organization is that you have to be Black or male to volunteer, but that's not true. We welcome anyone with a passion for mentoring and empowering young people.

CA: That's wonderful to hear. Thank you for sharing your story, Julisa.

JM: Thank you, Carolyn. I appreciate the opportunity to highlight our work and this partnership with Nashville PBS.
